

Reading Journal

10/20

Today, we read 'Saving the Date' on the textbook. It was my first time to read such a long English article. I could know most of the meaning but there were some words I could not understand.

10/27

Today, we read 'A proud homemaker'. From the article, we knew that it was important to make the family together. However, it took me a lot of time to understand it.

11/03

Today, we read 'When enough is enough'. The article was too long for me to read so that I did not finish it on class. Since I wanted to improve my English reading, I tried to finish it after class. Luckily, I could understand the article without translation software.

11/10

Today, we did test again to get used to the midterm test. However, I did not do it very well. Since I have a fever last week, I did not feel better this whole week. So I could not read the text carefully and I got many questions wrong.

11/13

Today, we did the midterm exam in the afternoon. Although I had prepared for this exam for a lot of time, there was still something that I did not know in the article. However, I felt like that my English reading skill had been improved through the practice.

11/17

Today, we viewed the radio we made last week. During the class, we saw each group's radio and read the text from it. This made me know that everyone in the class wanted to improve their own English and they had achieved a lot.

11/24

Today, I did some reading related to doing research for the debate. Thanks to my choice of topic, the reading experience was not too difficult and not too easy. But there were still a lot of words I didn't know, and I hope I don't make mistakes when I debate.

11/27

Today, we read 'Finding my way back home' which was too long for me to read. However, I could know what it meant totally. I thought it was because I was getting more used to reading long content.

12/8

Today, I did some reading to do research for the Shark Tank project. At this time, we read some science type materials especially websites related to future. And I thought my reading skill really improved.

12/15

Today, we did the presentation for the Shark Tank and read the words of other groups' presentation. Their speeches are fluent and lively so that I could understand them easily. With the anxiety of English speech, I successfully completed the presentation.
