

Listening journal

10/16

Today, we did our first listening practice. And I found it difficult for me to understand the accents in both the video and the recording because I did not do enough listening practices in my high school. The worst thing was that the video always had the background noise to make me could not focus on the listening.

10/23

Today, we did the listening section in our class. I thought I did better than last week. Although I still could not repeat all the words, I successfully understood what the video or the talking meant. During the class, I could answer professor's questions in time.

10/30

Today we do the listening practice. We listened to a short passage and we needed to fill in the blanks. Although I could recognize what it said, there were some words that I did not know. So I failed to tell the right answer.

11/06

Today, we did test to prepare the midterm in order to be familiar with the test. Although I have been practicing listening for several weeks, I could not follow the speed of it. So I had to guess what the text meant. Finally I did not get a good grade.

11/13

Today, we did the midterm exam in the afternoon. Since I did not check my computer well, I could not get in the exam in time. So when the exam began the listening part, I still could not see the questions. I was a little nervous but I finally finished it.

11/17

Today, we viewed the radio we made last week. During the class, we listened to each group's radio. This made me know that everyone in the class wanted to improve their own English and they had achieved a lot.

11/20

Today, we planned to prepare for debate this week. We carefully listened to the teacher talking about the details of the debate and determined the topic of the debate question. Luckily, I could understand what the teacher said.

11/27

Today, we viewed the radio 'Holidays 10 Best: Cities'. I found it was harder than before so that I had to listen to it twice to realize what it had said. And since their speed of speaking became more quickly, it was not easy for me to catch the main idea.

12/4

Today, we needed to decide the direction for the Shark Tank project. I found it was hard for me to listen to the directions about it because some of them included some professional words. And we were going to give a presentation about this.

12/11

Today, we did a short listening practice that I could know what it meant quickly. And its content was very interesting. After a semester of study, my English listening has been greatly improved.
